HISTORY

This delightful listed building has its origins early 1700's with the first floor extension in 1820. Around the late 1840's it became The Postmasters House and Holywoods Post Office unit until it moved to High Street in 1872. The recent restoration sympathetically recreates some of this Victorian style and post office history in the reception area and the Postmasters Office, while creating a stylish and relaxed working environment throughout the rest of the building.
